

Kenn Oke is a Vice-President with Avant Ministries overseeing Avant's work in Europe and Latin America. He has been with Avant since 1994 working in Spain and Poland. Kenn has an M.A. in Intercultural Studies from Colombia International University, in Korntal Germany. His Masters Thesis focused on developing an instrument to measure the health of developing churches. Based on the thesis he has written articles published in Evangelical Missions Quarterly and Christianity Today's blog. He has worked with organizations in Europe, India, and South America, teaching them how to measure intangibles in order to create alignment between their organization's Ends and its on-the-ground strategies. Kenn currently lives in Malaga, Spain.